

EPCOR – What's the deal?

We in Edmonton have a unique structure of management when it comes to city utilities. In 1995, City Council voted to undertake a corporate format for the provision of our water and energy services, creating what we know today as EPCOR. Now in 2009, the directors of EPCOR convinced City Council to make a private decision to transfer the power generating assets of EPCOR to a newly created corporate entity titled 'Capital Power,' essentially moving public assets and money into the pockets of private business. Worse, it was done without any public knowledge, completely behind closed doors.

There are numerous concerns with City Council's decision to transfer away the power generating assets of EPCOR, and they affect all of us who make Edmonton our home. Take action now to hold our City Council accountable!

Please take a moment to visit our website
www.ourpoweredmonton.ca or call us at 780.406.9077

EPCOR – What's the deal?

We in Edmonton have a unique structure of management when it comes to city utilities. In 1995, City Council voted to undertake a corporate format for the provision of our water and energy services, creating what we know today as EPCOR. Now in 2009, the directors of EPCOR convinced City Council to make a private decision to transfer the power generating assets of EPCOR to a newly created corporate entity titled 'Capital Power,' essentially moving public assets and money into the pockets of private business. Worse, it was done without any public knowledge, completely behind closed doors.

There are numerous concerns with City Council's decision to transfer away the power generating assets of EPCOR, and they affect all of us who make Edmonton our home. Take action now to hold our City Council accountable!

Please take a moment to visit our website
www.ourpoweredmonton.ca or call us at 780.406.9077

EPCOR – What's the deal?

We in Edmonton have a unique structure of management when it comes to city utilities. In 1995, City Council voted to undertake a corporate format for the provision of our water and energy services, creating what we know today as EPCOR. Now in 2009, the directors of EPCOR convinced City Council to make a private decision to transfer the power generating assets of EPCOR to a newly created corporate entity titled 'Capital Power,' essentially moving public assets and money into the pockets of private business. Worse, it was done without any public knowledge, completely behind closed doors.

There are numerous concerns with City Council's decision to transfer away the power generating assets of EPCOR, and they affect all of us who make Edmonton our home. Take action now to hold our City Council accountable!

Please take a moment to visit our website
www.ourpoweredmonton.ca or call us at 780.406.9077

EPCOR – What's the deal?

We in Edmonton have a unique structure of management when it comes to city utilities. In 1995, City Council voted to undertake a corporate format for the provision of our water and energy services, creating what we know today as EPCOR. Now in 2009, the directors of EPCOR convinced City Council to make a private decision to transfer the power generating assets of EPCOR to a newly created corporate entity titled 'Capital Power,' essentially moving public assets and money into the pockets of private business. Worse, it was done without any public knowledge, completely behind closed doors.

There are numerous concerns with City Council's decision to transfer away the power generating assets of EPCOR, and they affect all of us who make Edmonton our home. Take action now to hold our City Council accountable!

Please take a moment to visit our website
www.ourpoweredmonton.ca or call us at 780.406.9077

